

God? Or the creator?

God knows everything in the past, the present and the future. If he knows everything, why do we need to be? If God always forgives our sins, what need is there for Hell?

Millions of years ago the creator created a single cell and started us on our long journey. While he guides us towards our destiny, in no way does he know everything about the present or anything at all about the future.

I have to believe in the theory of evolution. The evidence is overwhelming.

But I also have to believe in the creator, because the human body is so perfectly complicated.

The act of reproduction, it can not be by accident, or only because of evolution, that a male and female are rewarded with pleasure when joining together to conceive a new being. This can only be the creator's arrangement.

The creator guides us; his reward is seeing how well we develop.

I do not need to go to church in order to thank the creator, I just need to think of him or her sometimes.

In the last few milliseconds of my life, my own conscience will judge me and I will live with its judgement for the rest of my life. Then I will be no more.

Forever and ever, Amen.
